DETAILED ACTION

(1)

Response to Amendments and Arguments

The amendments and arguments filed February 13, 2004 are acknowledged. In response thereto, the prior grounds of rejection has been withdrawn. In view of the amendments to the claims and the addition of new claims 45-55, a new restriction requirement has been founded as set forth in section (2), below.

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 20-26 and 32-39 drawn to an apparatus for providing a substrate with viscous medium, classified in class 118, subclass 712.
- II. Claims 27-30 and 40-46, drawn to an apparatus for correcting application errors in connection with the application of viscous medium on a substrate prior to hardening of the viscous medium, classified in class 29, subclass 402.01.
- III. Claims 47-50 and 51-55, drawn to an apparatus for correcting application errors in connection with the application of viscous medium on a substrate prior to mounting of components on the substrate, classified in class 29, subclass 402.08.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the subcombination requires that the processing means receive errors which stem from errors in the application of the viscous medium and also requires that the correction means be utilized prior to the hardening of the viscous medium. The subcombination has separate utility such as a correction apparatus for use in, example, an ink jet printing device capable of forming a decorative substrate.

Art Unit: 1734

Inventions I and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the subcombination requires that the processing means receive errors which stem from errors in the application of the viscous medium and also requires that the correction means be utilized prior to mounting of components on the substrate. The subcombination has separate utility such as a correction apparatus for use in, example, a chip or board reworking device capable of forming a pattern of conductive adhesive lands on a board suitable for remounting of component chips thereon.

Inventions II and III are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention of Group II has separate utility such as a correction apparatus for use in, example, an ink jet printing device capable of forming a decorative substrate. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
